

J

My dear fellow:

I am contacting you on the occasion of your anniversary with a contemplation of the events of family history in a larger context, which places the entrepreneur at the focal point. One could now object that the person having the anniversary knows this story even better than the writer. However, I only wanted to show that I know it too.

Since I can add nothing to all our congratulations, I have wrapped up in these lines my feelings of gratitude and pride in you. You will certainly gather from them what I wanted to say to you.

Sincerely yours, as ever
